

Special Announcement

Hereafter this Store will be the Home of The Pictorial Review Patterns

Garment Making rendered a pleasure through the aid of the Cutting and Construction Guide, which is given FREE with every Pattern.

SAVES TIME, GOODS AND WORRY

They are regarded by the woman who is most considerate about the Pattern she uses as the first and last word of Fashion Authority.

Try a Pictorial Review Pattern Today

"Our Specialties"

Sterling Quality Shoes for Men, Women and Children. WA-
NER DUST-PROOF CORSETS. Black Cat Guaranteed Hosiery
for Men, Women and Children. Specialities in Laces and Embroideries.

Eidson Dry Goods Co.

419-423 Mesquite Street

Pavilion Hotel ON THE BAY EUROPEAN PLAN

All Deluxe Rooms. Rates $1.00 Per Day. Special Monthly Rates.

First-Class Cafe in Connection.

BATHING--Best Equipped Bath House on the Coast--Season Ticket $5

Insist on having good meats. If you cannot get them elsewhere, you certainly can here.

The Bluff City Market

1206 Leopard Street Phone 252
Prompt deliveries all over town.

J. F. SPARKS, Prop.

FANCY FRONT DOORS.

Just Received!

a large assortment of Bevel Plate, Leaded Art and Lace Designs. Call and See Them.

H. D. Taylor Lumber Co.

PHONE 399 NEAR S. A. & A. P. Ry.

SANITATION IN SCHOOLS.

(Caller-Herald Special.)

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 19.—Dr. A. Caswell Ellis, professor of education at the University of Texas, who delivered an illustrated lecture on the subject of "Sanitary School Buildings" at the Y. M. C. A. hall here last night, is considering the matter of drafting a bill to be presented to the next legislature for a law regulating the architectural construction and equipment of school rooms.

"We have laws regulating all sorts of buildings," said Dr. Ellis, "but it seems peculiar that we have never had much to say concerning the buildings in which our children spend the most of their time."

"A many of the old-style school rooms in which I have made investigation

I have found the temperature above blind heat on one side of the room, while on the other side the mercury stood near freezing."

Arrangements have been made by the local school board for the protection of school children against fire. A contract has been awarded for the installation of automatic safety latches on all outer doors of the school buildings. The latches are so constructed that the smallest child can't get out of the room unassisted, although the door is securely barred against any one on the outside.

For Retirement Law.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19.—Several hundred delegates representing the postal and customs services and other branches of the civil government were present today at the opening of the annual convention of the United States Civil Service Retirement Association. The convention will last two days and will be devoted to a thorough discussion of the various bills now before congress for a retirement system for the government employees.

Gulf Coast Hardware Company

For Sale

1000 acres black sandy land close to Nueces River. $25.00 per acre. $5,000 cash, balance in ten years.

A beautiful modern, six-room bungalow with bath room and all necessary connections, city water, through property. Lat 50x150. Plenty of outside houses. Cement walks in front leading to front steps, also beautiful lawn. This is a bargain. See—

Martin R. Kelly
Corner Leopard and East Sts.
PHONE 401.

Wm. L. Walton
Manager

PABLO MARTINEZ HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Arrested by Sheriff Wright in This City Thursday Afternoon.

Pablo Martinez, a Mexican who is charged with assault to murder upon the person of Constable B. C. Baldwin of Kingsville, dating back from last October, is now lodged in the county jail. Martinez was arrested late Thursday afternoon in this city, but the fact that he was a prisoner was kept a secret until yesterday morning, when Sheriff Wright announced the fact.

Martinez has been a very much sought individual and rewards amounting to $500 had been offered half of the amount being offered by the Kingsville Commercial club for his arrest and conviction. Sheriff Wright will receive both rewards, in case Martinez is convicted when tried.

The crime for which Martinez is charged occurred on last October. Baldwin had gone to the Mexican portion of Kingsville to arrest Martinez, for alleged bootlegging. Martinez yielded to the arrest and Baldwin was anticipating no trouble when two other Mexican men and two Mexican women appeared on the scene and in an affray that ensued between all of the Mexicans on one side, and the officer on the other. Baldwin was shot through one of the lungs with a pistol ball, discharged from his own revolver, which it is alleged was fired by Martinez.

Martinez, mounting a horse nearby, made his escape, and until he was arrested yesterday had managed to stave off the officers. It is understood that for several months he was in Camargo, which is across the river on the Mexican side, from Rio Grande City. It was thought for several days that Baldwin would not survive, and Kingsville and surrounding country was searched for several days, by officers including state rangers, but Martinez had made good his escape.

His companions, whom it is charged, were participants in the attack on Baldwin, were arrested and after the recovery of Baldwin, were brought to Corpus and given an examining trial before Justice Whelan. They were each held in the sum of $500. The Mexican women furnished bond, but the men are still in the county jail.

Justice Whelan stated yesterday that the examining trial of Martinez would likely be set for Monday.

AMUSEMENTS.

Albert Taylor Company.

"His Attorney," a delightful comedy in four acts, with Albert Taylor in the stellar role, was the attraction at the Olympia last night.

"His Attorney" is a splendid vehicle for the display of the really good comedy of Albert Taylor, and probably better enjoyed than any role which Taylor has ever essayed before a Corpus Christi audience. Taylor has appeared here for a number of seasons and has always been a prime favorite, but he never received better reception than that accorded him last night.

The play deals with efforts of John Patrick Henry, an attorney in a small Missouri town, who travels across the ocean to acquaint himself with a brother and sister, of whom he was the legal guardian. He finds the girl, Avie Hall, in the snare of a titled engagement and through his efforts the machination of an English nobility couple to secure the wedding of a pampered titled son to the girl, in order to obtain her money, was thwarted.

The play abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.

His John Patrick Henry, attorney and member of the legislature from Missouri, was a piece of acting that will long be remembered by those who witnessed last night's performance.

The play also abounds in homesy and trite sayings of the "Taylor" kind and is said to be just the way that one expects Taylor to say it, which is meant as a compliment to Mr. Taylor.